Hidalgo. (2004). Color. 136 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: Spanish, French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Joe Johnston. Featuring Viggo Mortensen, Louise Lombard, Omar Sharif. Actor Viggo Mortensen made his first starring appearance in a film after his breakthrough performance in the Lord of the Rings trilogy with this period adventure. Frank T. Hopkins (Mortensen) is a U.S. Cavalry officer who earned a reputation as one of the fastest and most daring riders in the West; however, after taking part in the bloody massacre at Wounded Knee, Hopkins becomes disenchanted with the Cavalry, and once his hitch is up, he takes a job as a rider with a seedy touring Wild West show. During an engagement in New York, Hopkins meets Aziz (Adam Alexi-Malle), an associate of wealthy Bedouin Sheikh Riyadh (Omar Sharif), who knows of Hopkins' talents and wants him to take part in "The Ocean of Fire," an annual 3,000-mile desert horse race running from Arabia to Iraq. Hopkins accepts the invitation and sails to the Middle East with his trusty mustang Hidalgo without knowing just what he's getting himself into. Once he arrives, Hopkins learns that the punishing race course claims the lives of nearly half its contestants, and that most of his competitors ride pure-bred Arabian stallions and do not regard Hidalgo and his master as worthy adversaries. Temporarily exiled to a land where freedom eludes the multitudes and class and wealth define one's fate, Hopkins finds himself riding for both honor and principle, with the support of Riyadh and his beautiful, headstrong daughter, Jazira (Zuleikha Robinson), though the Sheikh's nephew Katib (Silas Carson) is equally determined to see Hopkins go down in defeat. Hitch. (2005). Color. 118 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2005. Directed by Andy Tennant. Featuring Will Smith, Amber Valletta, Eva Mendez, Kevin James. A man who teaches dateless wonders how to become irresistible to women learns just how hard it can be to do it yourself in this romantic comedy. When a guy in New York City wants to make the right impression with a certain lady, Alex "Hitch" Hitchens (Will Smith) is the man he calls. Hitch has made a career out of coordinating a man's first three dates so that they'll show him to his best advantage (for a price, of course), and more than a few have taken women to the altar they first started courting with Hitch's help. But Hitch discovers his own romantic limitations when he falls for Sara (Eva Mendes), a journalist who has her own ideas about romance, and might just expose Hitch's underground business to the world. In the midst of all this, Hitch has his hands full with Albert, a sweet but socially inept man who has enlisted Hitch's services. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. DVD. $28.95; VHS. $54.99.

Hotel Rwanda. (2004). Color. 122 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Theatrical Release. Video Released 2004. Directed by Terry George. Featuring Don Cheadle, Nick Nolte, Joaquin Phoenix, Sophie Okonedo. Hotel Rwanda tackles one of the most horrifically ugly events in recent history, when the Hutus of Rwanda rose up against the minority Tutsis (who were empowered by the departed Belgian colonists) and massacred them, while the rest of the world looked on and did nothing. Don Cheadle stars as Paul Rusesabagina, the hotel manager at the fancy Les Milles Collines hotel in Kigali. Paul is a Hutu, and a very successful businessman who smoothly greases the wheels, making powerful connections in all strata of Rwandan life. His wife, Tatiana (Sophie Okonedo of Aeon Flux), is a Tutsi. She urges Paul to use his influence to help local Tutsis, who are being harassed and beaten with increasing frequency, but Paul will only use the political capital he's built up to help his own family, if and when they need it. Soon enough, the violence escalates, and the Hutus begin their genocide of the Tutsis. European guests and staff at the hotel are flown out of the country, and Paul is left in charge. He finds that his conscience won't allow him to watch as the innocent are slaughtered, and before long, the hotel has become a well-appointed refugee camp. Paul is seen as a traitor by some, putting his life in danger, and the predicament of his "guests" grows more precarious every day, but despite good intentions on the part of a journalist (Joaquin Phoenix) and a UN peacekeeping colonel (Nick Nolte), the rest of the world is not eager to intervene and stop the massacre. Award(s): Academy Award, Best Actor, 2004: Don Cheadle; Academy Award, Best Supporting Actress, 2004: Sophie Okonedo; Golden Globe Award, Best Motion Picture, 2004. MGM/UA Home Video. DVD. $26.98; DVD.

The Hours. (2002). Color. 114 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2002. Directed by Stephen Daldry. Featuring Nicole Kidman, Julianne Moore, Meryl Streep, Stephen Dillane, Miranda Richardson, Jeff Daniels, Ed Harris, Toni Collette, Allison Janney, Claire Danes, John C. Reilly. Three women, separated by a span of nearly 80 years, find themselves weathering similar crises, all linked by a single work of literature in this film adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Michael Cunningham. In 1923, Virginia Woolf (Nicole Kidman) is attempting to start work on her novel Mrs. Dalloway, in which she chronicles one day in the life of a troubled woman. But Virginia has demons of her own, and she struggles to overcome the depression and suicidal impulses that have followed her throughout her life, as her husband Leonard (Stephen Dillane) ineffectually tries to help. In 1951, Laura Brown (Julianne Moore) is a housewife living in suburban Los Angeles, where she looks after her son Richie (Jack Rovello) and husband Dan (John C. Reilly). Laura is also an avid reader who is currently making her way through Mrs. Dalloway. The farther she gets into the novel, the more Laura discovers that it reflects a dissatisfaction she feels in her own life, and she finds herself pondering the notion of leaving her life behind. Finally, in 2000, Clarissa Vaughn (Meryl Streep) is a literary editor who is caring for Richard Brown (Ed Harris), a former boyfriend and noted author, who is slowly losing his fight with AIDS. Clarissa is trying to arrange a party to celebrate the fact that Richard has won a prestigious literary award, but is getting little help from Richard's ex-lover, Louis (Jeff Daniels). As she labors to help Richard through another day, he wonders if his life is worth the unending struggle. House of Flying Daggers. (2004). Color. 119 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: French). Video Released 2004. Directed by Zhang Yimou. Featuring Zhang Ziyi, Andy Lau, Takeshi Kaneshiro. In the year 859 A.D., as the Tang dynasty is beset by rebellion, Leo (Andy Lau) and Jin (Takeshi Kaneshiro) are a pair of lawmen who have been given the task of ferreting out the leaders of a revolutionary faction known as the Flying Daggers. Working on a tip that members of the group are working out of a brothel called the Peony Pavilion, Jin arrives there in disguise and is introduced to a beautiful blind dancer named Mei (Zhang Ziyi). After watching Mei's performance following several drinks, Jin drunkenly attempts to have his way with her, and Leo is forced to intervene. After gaining Mei's trust in a game of skill, Leo arrests her and informs her that she'll be tortured if she doesn't tell all she knows about the Flying Daggers. Jin responds by helping Mei break out of prison, but he has an ulterior motive — by following her, Leo and Jin are certain she'll lead them to the Flying Daggers. However, as he helps the blind girl find her way back home, Jin finds himself falling in love with Mei, and isn't certain if he's willing to betray her again. In America. (2002). Color. 105 mins. CC PG13. (Dubbed: Spanish, French). Video Released 2002. Directed by Jim Sheridan. Featuring Djimon Hounsou, Emma Bolger, Sarah Bolger, Samantha Morton. The loosely autobiographical script centers on Johnny (Paddy Considine), a young actor sneaking his wife, Sarah (Samantha Morton), and daughters, Christy and Ariel (real-life sisters Sarah and Emma Bolger, respectively), over the Canadian border in the hopes of jump-starting his career in New York City. They soon find that America is not the land of boundless opportunity, however, as they move into a dank, dilapidated apartment building populated by drug dealers, transients, and thugs. Johnny doesn't snag auditions as easily as he may have hoped, and he and Sarah are forced to take meager jobs after spending their savings on food, rent, and utilities. Still in grief over the untimely death of their toddler son back in Ireland, the couple find their relationship further strained by the pressures of life in the city. Little by little, however, things begin to look up for the fiercely protective family unit, especially when they befriend an eccentric artist neighbor named Mateo (Djimon Hounsou). Award(s): Academy Award, Best Actress, 2003: Samantha Morton; Academy Award, Best Supporting Actor, 2003: Djimon Hounsou; National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, 2003; American Film Festival, 2003. In This World. (2002). Color. 88 mins. CC R. Video Released 2003. Directed by Michael Winterbottom. Featuring Jamal Udin Torabi, Enayatullah, Wakeel Khan, Hiddayatullah, Imran Paracha. In This World" is the journey of two refugees from Pakistan, entirely shot in a semi-documentary style. Their hard times during the trek are realistically presented largely owing to these non-professionals, and the film sometimes blurs the borderline between the reality and fiction. Jamal (Jamal Udin Torabi) is an orphan living in the camp for refugees in Pakistan. He works at a brick factory, but the wages he receives are incredibly low. In the meantime, it is decided that Enayatullah (Enayatullah), Jamal's cousin, should go to one of the relative's in London, and Jamal jumps at this rare opportunity to see the world outside. The only problem is, their journey is nothing like business trip; as refugees, they have to hide from the authorities that would send them back to Pakistan if they should ever be discovered.That last part is not the only obstacle they meet on the way. Jamal and Enayatullah have to depend on the smugglers who might not be trustworthy as the huge amount of money they have to give suggests. And even if they turn honest, the two travellers have to go on the hazardous route that might possibly take their lives away. Award(s): Berlin International Film Festival, 2003. Lions Gate Home Entertainment. DVD. $26.99.

Innocence Unprotected. Orig. Title: Nevinost Bex Bastite. (1968). Documentaries (Feature Films). 78 mins. (Serbian, Subtitled: English). Video Released Aug. 1992. Dragoljub Aleksic, Ana Milosavjevic, Vera Jovanovic, Bratoljub Gligorijevic. Directed by Dusan Makavejev. In 1942 a professional strong man named Dragoljub Aleksic directed & starred in a trite little melodrama title "Innocence Unprotected" - the first Serbian talkie. Over 20 years later, Dusan Makavejev retrieved the film from the Archives, tinted many of the sequences by hand, & interviewed Aleksic & his co-workers in present day Yugoslavia 1968. The resulting cinematic collage is a funny & daring (in both content & form) mix of a wide variety of film footage - including documentary, narrative, agitprop, & various other bits & pieces of found footage. An ambitious film which is best defined as part documentary, part bizarre comedy, "Innocence Unprotected" is strange & unforgettable entertainment - presenting, in the midst of all its humor, a serious portrait of the war period in Yugoslavia. Facets Multimedia, Inc. VHS. (ISBN: 978-1-56580-004-5(4), Order #: S15487, UPC: 7 3689915487 5) $59.95.

The Interpreter. Color. 129 mins. PG13. (Subtitled: Spanish, French). Video Released Oct. 2005. Nicole Kidman, Sean Penn, Catherine Keener, Jesper Christensen, Earl Cameron. Directed by Sydney Pollack. Director Sidney Pollack's diverse career sees him returning to familiar ground with THE INTERPRETER. Crafted from the same mould that saw Pollack produce the superlative political thriller THREE DAYS OF THE CONDOR (1975), Nicole Kidman and Sean Penn star in a film riddled with subterfuge, recriminations, and deadly secrets. Kidman plays Silvia Broome, an interpreter who works at the UN in New York City. One night, while collecting a bag she has left behind in the building, Silvia overhears a whispered conversation in which an assassination attempt on a redoubtable African leader, named Zuwanie (Earl Cameron), is planned during his future visit to the UN. Secret service agent Tobin Keller (Penn) is assigned to provide security for Zuwanie on the forthcoming trip, and conducts an investigation when Silvia explains what she has heard. He quickly discovers that Silvia has a lengthy, troubled past as a citizen from the same country as Zuwanie, and immediately doubts her story. A series of frantic, fast-paced set pieces ensue, with Pollack beautifully capturing the architectural wonder of the UN, and staging some breathtaking scenes all over the city. Much has been made of THE INTERPRETER'S status as the first film to be shot inside the UN, and it's to Pollack's credit that he wasn't overawed by such a prospect. Making full use of the building, the director highlights the hustle and bustle of a typical day at the UN, while also shooting eerily silent late night scenes among the famous halls and corridors. As Pollack piles on the tension, Penn and Kidman deliver exemplary performances alongside a prodigious supporting cast, who do justice to an intelligently written plot designed to keep viewers guessing right up until the final moments of the film. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. DVD. (ISBN: 978-1-4170-1838-3(0), UPC: 025192583520) $29.99.

Jack Benny, George Burns, Merry Anders, Warren Kemmerling, Lucille Ball, Arte Johnson, Don Wilson, Elisabeth Fraser, Eddie 'Rochester' Anderson, Dennis Day, Robert Foulk, Frances Robinson, Bernie Kopell, Henry Hunter, Ned Miller, Joy Monaghan, Sam Hearn, Hoke Howell, Frederick De Cordova. Directed by Norman Abbott. "Jack Is Kidnapped" - Jack is kidnapped by a beautiful blonde (Anders) & two thugs who demand $10,000 or they'll break both his legs. Jack is horrified at the idea of paying ransom so he tries to negotiate for just one broken leg. The thugs drag Jack off to the bank where he throws the entire place into a panic by withdrawing the money. "The Lucille Ball Show" - Jack is so pleased to have the first lady of television, Lucille Ball, as a guest star on his show, he is wearing his tuxedo for the opening monolog. The dignified mood is broken when Lucy comes out in her clown makeup & blacked out teeth, mugging outrageously for the audience. Arte Johnson makes a cameo appearance as an outraged stagehand. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. VHS, Digital Dolby Hi-Fi Mono. (ISBN: 978-0-7832-1037-7(X), Order #: 81992, UPC: 0-9689-81992-3) $14.98.

The Jacket. (2005). Color. 103 mins. CC R. Video Released 2005. Directed by John Maybury. Featuring Adrien Brody, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Keira Knightley. A troubled war veteran tries to unlock his memories of a terrible crime in this stylish thriller, the first American project for British filmmaker John Maybury. In 1991, Jack Starks (Adrien Brody) was an American soldier serving in the Persian Gulf when he was shot in the head, pronounced dead by a field surgeon, Starks somehow returned to life, though with no small number of psychological problems to show for his troubles. A year later, Starks was walking through the snowy Vermont wilderness when he discovers a woman whose truck has broken down, Jean (Kelly Lynch). Starks tries to help Jean and her young daughter, and later flags down a car for a ride into town; however, the car is being driven by a criminal on the run from the police (Brad Renfro), and not long after the car is cornered by police, Starks' memory goes blank. When he comes to, Jack is accused of killing a patrolman in the violent standoff that followed, and is told the woman, her daughter, and the criminal existed only in his imagination. Declared insane in his murder trial, Starks is sentenced to a mental institution run by Dr. Becker (Kris Kristofferson), who seems to believe that the more brutal the treatment, the better. As Starks suffers frequent beatings and long spells in a frozen locker, his mind drifts from his harrowing past into the future, where he visits with Jackie (Keira Knightley), who once was the young girl Starks tried to help. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. $24.98.

Japanese Story. (2003). Color. 105 mins. CC R. Video Released 2003. Directed by Sue Brooks. Featuring Toni Collette, Lynette Curran, Matthew Dyktynski, Gotaro Tsunashima. Toni Collette stars as Sandy Edwards, an ambitious geologist who is most comfortable when working alone. She also runs a software design company with a business partner, Bill Baird (Matthew Dyktynski), and she doesn't get along very well with her mother (Lynette Curran). While trying to sell their software products, Bill asks for her help in catching a prospective client. Sandy reluctantly meets the quiet and reserved Japanese businessman Hiromitsu (Gotaro Tsunashima) in order to make a sale. After he requests that she take him on a driving tour, the odd couple find themselves stranded in the Pilbara desert for a night — one of the most remote places in the Australian outback. During this time together, their relationship quickly escalates and both parties are changed by the experience. Sony Pictures Home Entertainment. VHS.

Joe & Max. (2002). Color. 120 mins. CC PG13. Made-for-TV. Video Released 2002. Leonard Roberts, Til Schweiger, Peta Wilson, John Toles Bey. Directed by Steve James. In the 1930s and '40s, the rivalry between Joe Louis and Max Schmeling was one of the greatest in the history of professional boxing. Louis was one of the first African-Americans to win the Heavyweight championship, and he was a great symbol of hope and achievement for blacks before the advent of the Civil Rights Movement, while Schmeling was a German who many Nazi supporters cited as an example of the innate superiority of the Aryan race. However, what few people knew is that despite their rivalry in the ring, between bouts Louis and Schmeling were good friends, and that Schmeling was not only never a member of the Nazi party, but spurned the attention of Adolf Hitler and helped save the lives of several Jews during the Nazi pogroms. Johnny English. (2004). Color. 86 mins. CC PG. (Subtitled: French, Spanish). Video Released 2004. Directed by Peter Howitt. Featuring Rowan Atkinson, John Malkovich, Douglas McFerran, Ben Miller, Natalie Imbruglia. An unhinged parody of James Bond theatrics, Johnny English finds Mr. Bean himself suiting up as the eponymous super spy for a series of wild and silly adventures. A lowly pencil pusher working for the MI7 agency, Johnny English (Rowan Atkinson) is suddenly promoted to super spy after Agent One is assassinated and every other agent is blown up at his funeral. When billionaire entrepreneur Pascal Sauvage (John Malkovich) sponsors the exhibition of the Crown Jewels and the valuable gems disappear on the opening night, and on the watch of English, the newly designated agent must jump into action to uncover the thief and procure the missing valuables. Tracking the thieves' underground escape route with sidekick Bough (Ben Miller), English locks in on Sauvage despite repeated assurances by boss Pegasus (Tim Pigott-Smith) that the respected entrepreneur has nothing to do with the crime. Could the mysterious Lorna (Natalie Imbruglia), who has an odd habit of turning up at the wrong place at the wrong time, hold the key to helping Johnny? A massive hit overseas, Johnny English held it's own at the box office in early April 2003, and was slated for wide release in the U.S. If the spoofing in Johnny English strikes especially close to home, that may be because the film was scripted by Neal Purvis and Robert Wade, who teamed to pen such Bond adventures as Die Another Day and The World is Not Enough. Universal Studios Home Video, Inc. DVD. $26.98; VHS. $26.98; VHS. $22.98.

Johnson Family Vacation. (2004). Color. 96 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2004. Directed by Christopher Erskin. Featuring Cedric the Entertainer, Steve Harvey, Shannon Elizabeth, Lil Bow Wow, Vanessa Williams. When Nate Johnson (Cedric the Entertainer) is invited to a big family reunion in Missouri, he sees it as an opportunity to reconnect with his estranged wife and growing children, as well as a chance to show up his wealthier know-it-all brother, Mack (Steve Harvey). Nate takes delivery on an expensive new SUV, persuades his recently separated wife, Dorothy (Vanessa L. Williams), to tag along, and packs up his three kids — nubile teenager Nikki (Solange Knowles), under-age wannabe rapper DJ (Bow Wow), and precocious seven-year-old Destiny (Gabby Soleil) — for what he imagines will be a leisurely drive from Los Angeles to St. Louis. However, between his wary wife, arguing kids, angry police officers, bizarre hitchhikers, bad diner food, and an unfortunate run-in with a cement mixer, getting from point A to point B proves to be just short of a nightmare. Julia! America's Favorite Chef, 1 cass. Color. 60 mins. mins. (WGBH Boston Specials Ser.). CC Home, Group, Public performance. Video Released Nov. 2004. Julia Child. Julia Child was not a natural-born cook — when she married, she could barely boil an egg. But she fell in love with French food, and soon enrolled at the Cordon Bleu where she learned the great tradition of Classical French cuisine. Later, with two French women, she devoted years to writing a manuscript finally published as Mastering the Art of French Cooking which became a culinary classic and sold over one million copies.Warm and exuberant, Julia was a natural television star. In 1963, she appeared on public television in The French Chef, a cooking series unlike anything yet seen on TV. Scooping up a spilled potato pancake or coaxing a reluctant souffle, Julia was not afraid of making mistakes. Soon a nation fed on Shake n?Bake and Tang would be experimenting with quiche Lorraine and boeuf bourgignon and cooking would become a national pastime. This is the story of Julia?s two great loves—love for her husband Paul and for cooking. Through an interview with Julia herself, filmed in her fabled kitchen, and rare images from the photo collection of Paul Child and from family photo albums, Julia Child is revealed as few have seen her before in this tribute and testament to a great American icon. This mile-a-minute all-star-cast serial is set just prior to Pearl Harbor, & the "Dead End Kids" start out as their usual brawling, surly, scrappy selves. They mistrust all cops & federal agents, & such Junior G-Men as Jerry Markham. Almost immediately, they find themselves victimized during a bank theft, the culprits of which are a carefully organized mob that is but one link in a nefarious scheme to conquer America. It's being hatched by His Excellency, the devilish "Baron," head honcho of a ruthless Japanese spy ring. The chief "Dead End Kid" is "Ace" Holden, who's been learning to fly an airplane; as the story unfolds, he & his cronies & loved ones will be in dire danger as they find themselves in planes that are about to crash, speeding cars that are at the mercy of villians tossing bombs out of planes, & too many other precarious situations. Video Yesteryear. VHS. (Order #: 1796) $29.95.

K-19: The Widowmaker. (2002). Color. 138 mins. CC PG13. Video Released 2002. Harrison Ford, Liam Neeson, Peter Sarsgaard, Joss Ackland, Donald Sumpter. Directed by Kathryn Bigelow. The story of a Russian naval officer who's being given command of the Soviet Union's first nuclear submarine, K-19, at the height of the Cold War in 1961. The vessel's previous commander, has been demoted to executive officer following a botched test and his outspoken assertions that the flagship is not yet ready for deployment, but he curbs his resentment and resolves to serve his new superior well. His concerns are well founded: parts are not yet installed, equipment is missing, and the ship's doctor is killed in an auto mishap. Political pressure forces the captain to sail his crew into the North Atlantic anyway, for a missile fire test that serves as a warning to the U.S. that its enemy is now its technological equal. The test is a success, but a disastrous leak in the K-19's reactor cooling system soon threatens to create enough heat to detonate the craft's nuclear payload — which would certainly be mistaken for the first salvo in a worldwide atomic exchange and spark the beginning of World War III. With no other option, the captain orders his men to repair the damage in ten-minute shifts, irradiating them hopelessly. Paramount Pictures. VHS.; DVD. $29.99.

Keeping Up Appearances: The Full Bouquet, 1-8, 8. (2004). Color. 1400 mins. CC NR. Video Released 2004. Created by Roy Clarke. Featuring Clive Swift, Patricia Routledge. American sitcoms usually have a bland, likable central character who has to cope with obnoxious acquaintances—who usually provide most of the actual comedy. The British smartly put the comic personalities front and center, and Keeping Up Appearances has one of the best: The petty, pretentious, tyrannical Hyacinth Bucket (played by the impressive Patricia Routledge), a dowdy middle-class social climber with a piercing voice and an unshakable faith in herself. Upon learning that her mailman has seven children, she declares disapprovingly, "Quite an achievement when you have to be up so early." Whether she's scheming to invite a minor local celebrity to a garden party or scowling at an enormous dog left in her driveway, Hyacinth terrorizes all around her, particularly her long-suffering husband Richard (Clive Swift), who takes a small delight in subverting her efforts from time to time; her trembling neighbors Elizabeth and Emmett (Josephine Tewson and David Griffin), who scarcely leave their house lest they be invited in to coffee; and her sexually frustrated lower-class sisters Daisy and Rose (Judy Cornwell and Mary Millar) and Daisy's layabout husband Onslow (Geoffrey Hughes), who longs to be left in peace to eat chips and watch the races. Though Americans aren't as class-conscious as the Brits, snobbery is universal, and Keeping Up Appearances has developed an appreciative cult following on this side of the Atlantic. Warner Home Video, Inc. DVD. (ISBN: 978-0-7907-9409-9(8)) $129.98.
